VOLUME 55, NO. 44 | MIDDLETOWN, DELAWARE, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1922 | PRICE THREE CENTS

MEMORIAL LIBRARY

$300,000 Will be Raised During Week of October 23d

WILL DISTRIBUTE HONOR ROLL

Nothing since the world war has so stirred every class of Delawarean as the appeal to raise $300,000 with which to erect a memorial library to the memory of the soldiers of this state who gave their lives for the peace of the world and which is to be one of the most important structures at the University of Delaware. The drive which will be pushed during the week of Oct. 23, will be inaugurated at a dinner in Wilmington, on Friday evening, Oct. 20, and in each county and in scores of community meetings on Saturday, Oct. 21.

In addition to the collection of books and literature there will be preserved in the library, a tablet containing the names of the Delaware soldiers who made the supreme sacrifice, an illumined volume containing the history of the heroes, war trophies and flags and autographs of every man, woman and child who contributes to the campaign, no matter whether its a thousand dollars or a dollar. Honor rolls will be distributed to every school and lodge, at each industrial plant and among civic organizations, so that those who give may sign their names to be kept for future generations. In this campaign the state and local boards of education, church leaders both protestant and Catholic, fraternities and communities are cooperating in the raising of the fund.

While the library will be a lasting tribute to the dead soldiers of Delaware it will also be of great commercial value to the farmers of the state. Books and literature of immense benefit to progressive farmers will be placed at their disposal and to county agents and representatives of farm bureaus which will work directly among and with Delaware farmers in every town and village. These books will contain the latest advice and information relative to raising the best crops so that every man, woman and child is vitally interested in this campaign. From this week on and until Friday, Oct 27, hundreds of men and women and children will seek contributions so that Delaware may be the first state in the union to so honor its soldiers dead.

1,000,000 BUSHELS CORN

"New Castle County's corn crop this year will approximate 1,000,000 bushels and it is not too soon to get ready for our fall corn shows," stated Mr. C. P. Dickey of Stanton at the monthly meeting of New Castle County Farm Bureau held last Saturday in the Security Trust Building in Wilmington. Vice-President C. P. Dickey called the meeting to order. A full membership was present. Pursuant to Mr. Dickey's suggestion a motion was carried that two district corn shows be held, probably at Newark and Middletown. The committee in charge of the northern show is as follows: W. W. Buckingham of Newark, chairman; Fred Trimble of Hockessin, and Wilson Pierson of Hockessin. The southern committee will be appointed at an early date. The shows will be held in November.

Mr. J. D. Reynolds of Middletown discussed the cooperative purchasing to the effect that the seed pool of the Eastern States Farmers' Exchange, of which Delaware is a unit, would exceed 35,000 tons, and it was due to this large volume of business that the attractive prices were secured.

County Agent R. O. Bausman of Newark stated that a questionaire which he had sent to those farmers who had secured certified potato seed thru the Farm Bureau indicated that in many cases the certified seed yielded twice that of the home grown seed and that without exception every farmer indicated an intention of ordering more of the certified seed next spring.

A poultry disease know as Infectious Interitus is prevalent among poultry this fall. This disease is a natural result of the poultry typhoid infection of last summer.

Although the seed wheat situation this fall is not good, yet Mr. Bausman stated that he had record of a few crops that had shown satisfactory germination tests.

ADVISED TO SETTLE

Many misunderstanding and incorrect interpretations of the income tax laws are being disclosed as a result of the drive upon which deputy collectors from the internal revenue office have been detailed.

In an effort to correct errors which are being made constantly and to save taxpayers from the penalties which may be imposed upon failure to comply explicitly with the law, the collector, in a statement issued, pointed out that immediate attention should be given to all correspondence relating to tax matters.

Prompt action is recommended, especially in cases where additional tax is believed to be due. Occasionally individuals receive notice of additional tax, but disregard them because the individual is not in a financial position to make settlement. However, regardless of financial position, a prompt reply or visit to the revenue office will enable officials to make some arrangements, and the necessity for imposing a penalty will be avoided.

The collector's office has information concerning practically all who failed to comply, not only for the year 1921, but for previous years. It is, therefore, recommended by Mr. Herring, that all who are aware of their liability, call at the office. Such action, he said, will secure all possible leniency.

Our Percentage High

The United States has 6 per cent. of the world's population; 7 per cent. of the area; 30 per cent. of the manufacturers; 25 per cent. of the wealth; 40 per cent. of the coal; 40 per cent. of the iron; 50 per cent. of the gold; 50 per cent. of the copper; 66 per cent. of the petroleum; 66 per cent. of the cotton; 75 per cent of the corn; 80 per cent. of the automobiles.

They Are Going Fast

The new series of Opera House bonds are going fast. Do not delay purchasing until they are all disposed of. You will regret it, if you do.

ST. ANNE'S CHURCH NOTES

EPISCOPAL

Sunday, Oct. 22d, 1922. The 19th Sunday after Trinity.

Services: 10.30 A. M. Morning prayer and sermon.

11.45 A. M. Sunday School.

7.30 P. M. Evening prayer and address.

That which is OLD in our experience in that which has become habitual. The good habits of churchgoing, Biblestudy, Prayer, of kindly speech should all become habitual. Yet new light, new truths, new powers call us to new things. The life into which no new motives, no new endeavors can come is a poor and barren life. Christian character needs a wise combination of the old with the new.

You should become part of the Church. Half-hearted allegiance or unwillingness to let all the riches of the Church possess you will avail nothing. Be loyal. Learn of the Church's past, and the glory of it. Learn of its present, its needs, its struggles. Do not stand afar off and pretend to judge the Church, and perhaps condemn or ignore it, but share in its work and hopes and ideals. Better be a toiler in the Church than one indifferent or critical. Then live this life, whole-heartedly. Learn what discipleship in Christ means. For the Church is nothing apart from Him. Share its faith and be true to him.

The Treasurer of the Parish informs us that the amount of $54.00 has been sent from contributors to the "Near East Relief." This is about double the amount sent last Year Persons in foreign countries do not burden themselves with the coin of the country they have left. They translate it, convert it, into money, such as is current in those places. This is the method recommended by Jesus in regard to all earthly possessions." Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in Heaven."

FOREST CHURCH NOTES

PRESBYTERIAN

Sunday, October 22d, 1922.

10.30 A. M. Morning service. Sermon by the pastor.

11.45 A. M. Sunday School.

7.30 P. M. Evening service. Sermon by the Pastor.

Mid-week service Wednesday 7.30 P. M.

Boy Scout meeting Saturday, 7 P. M.

The pastor is very much gratified with the plans which have been made for conducting the mid-week prayer service. The meetings will be interesting and helpful. We trust that the attendance will be kept up and increased. Every loyal member should do his or her part in this department of the church work. Remember, nobody else can do that piece of work, as well as you can, which God has assigned to you. The church will function as a unit when each member is functioning properly. The health, strength and vitality of the body can be measured by the energy and activity of the individual members. The church is the body of Christ. Did you ever ask yourself the question, How much can Christ accomplish through me? Am I willing to serve my Lord who gave his life to serve me? Do not let spiritual laziness on your part paralyze the body of Christ. "Quit you like men—be strong." 1 Corinthians 16:13.

Bethesda Church Notes

METHODIST

Sunday, October 22, 1922.

9.30 A. M. The Brotherhood devotional meeting.

10.30 A. M. Sermon by the pastor.

11.45 A. M. Sunday School session. Last Sunday we had 106 at Sunday School. Let us make it 150 this Sunday.

7.30 P. M. Evening service and sermon by the pastor. Last Sunday was a great day for Methodism here. In the morning 32 new members were admitted into the church, which proves that the Gospel is still the power of God unto salvation. The auditorium was filled at both services. We thank you for your presence at the services, and trust that you bring others with you this Sunday. If you are a Methodist you will come eventually, so why not now?

Webb For Levy Court

Democrats of the Sixth Levy Court District, comprising St. Georges and Pencader hundreds, who are displeased with the nomination of Thomas W. Truitt as the canditate for Levy Court Commissioner from that district, have filed a ticket of the "Independent Peoples' Party" with Clerk of the Peace John L. Wright.

The ticket of the Independents differs from the ticket of the Democratic party only that it names Edward C. F. Webb, of Port Penn, as its candidate for Levy Court commissioner, in place of Mr. Truitt. No State Senator is to be elected from that district this year. The new party is confined entirely to the two hundreds. Its emblem is a dove with an olive branch in its mouth.

The only tickets filed so far are those of the Democratic party and the Independent Peoples' party. Time for filing tickets expired at midnight Wednesday. Two tickets are yet to be filed the Republican and the Forward parties.

Meeting of Teachers' Association

Nearly thirty members of the Middletown Unit of the Delaware State Teachers' Association, attended the first Fall meeting in the Academy Monday evening, at seven o'clock. Greetings were extended by Misses Barnes and Miller, County Supervisors, and by Messrs. J. P. Wiley, O. E. McKnight and W. H. Jump. Miss Barnes discussed the "Teachers' Professional Reading" and was followed by various criticisms of the new reading circle book which was distributed.

Plans were made for the exhibits to be shown at the annual meeting to be held in Dover, November 8th and 9th. The following members were chosen to represent the local Unit in the Representative Assembly at the annual meeting: Prof. O. E. McKnight, Prof. J. P. Wiley, Mrs. Ada Scott Jolls and Miss Alice Hutton. The election of officers was postponed until the next meeting, which will be held early in November.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Many Condensed News Items of the Past Week

IN THIS AND NEARBY POINTS

Mrs. L. A. Hickman, of near Millington, reports having seen a full-grown white buzzard in that section.

Miss Mable Conner and Miss Florence Boulden, of Cecilton, Md., were delegates at the Epworth League Convention held in Denton, Md., last week.

The ladies of Pencader Presbyterian Church will have a poultry supper in the lecture room of the church at Glasgow, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 24th.

Maryland apples, in spite of early Spring frost, are estimated to yield 1,950,000 bushels a big gain over the previous year, but somewhat short of the average crop.

The wild duck hunting season in Delaware opened Monday and it is lawful to shoot them until March 15th, but the Federal law closes the season on January 31st. As the Federal law supersedes State law on such matters, the end of the open season will be January 31st.

There is no nut or stove coal in Delaware City, nor has there been any since last spring. The coal dealers have received shipments of soft coal and pea coal from time to time, but have as yet been unable to secure any other sizes. The dealers, however, have shipments promised.

The woods along the deep cut of the Chesapeake & Delaware Canal, where the Canagan Construction Co. is working, caught fire last week. Every available man of the canal force at Chesapeake City and of the Canagan Construction Co., were rushed to the scene and succeeded in cutting off its course after some hard work.

Starting Friday of this week and continuing until October 27, the intensive drive will be conducted to raise $300,000 for the proposed memorial library at the University of Delaware. Much interest has already been aroused in the campaign because of the fact that the students and faculty of the institution, the rehabilitation students and the people of Newark have already contributed more than $22,000.

Stanley C. Hafer, of Philadelphia, is in charge of and keeps in good running order all the big presses that print the Saturday Evening Post, the Country Gentleman and the Ladies Home Journal, has purchased of Charles E. Davis 35 acres of land and the buildings thereon, being a portion of the Reed farm, situate in Appoquinimink Hundred west of Townsend, Del. Mr. and Mrs. Hafer get immediate possession and are laying plans to have a poultry plant of large dimensions in the near future. The purchaser was attracted to Middletown through the efforts of David E. Peters, of the Strout Farm Agency.

HOLSTEIN-FRIESIAN ASSO.

The Delaware Holstein-Friesian Association, of which Mr. J. R. Danks of Winterthur is Secretary, has again demonstrated its concern in the rural welfare of the State in a liberal donation it has made to be used in furthering the work of the boys' and girls' clubs. County Agent R. O. Bausman of Newark is in receipt of a check of $75.00 from Mr. Danks stating that the Association desires it to be used in giving awards of merit to members of the New Castle County Junior Dairy Cattle Club, and in other ways that will tend to imbue the members of the club with the opportunities that agriculture affords.

The Delaware Holstein-Friesian Association was created eight years ago and its purpose is to promote the breeding of and create a deeper interest in the Holstein-Friesian Breed of cattle. Through this means this Association feels that it is doing a worthy work in furthering rural welfare. The directors of the Association are: D. O. Hastings, Wilmington; H. F. duPont, Winterthur; H. B. Clark, Kenton; J. I. Dayett, Cooch; J. D. Reynolds, Middletown.

The New Castle County Junior Dairy Cattle Club was organized five years ago with 30 members. Today its membership comprises 120 of the most energetic country bred boys and girls of the county. Since the inception of the club many of these junior farmers have gained their majority and are laying a foundation to achieve other aspirations, namely, to develop and own a Holstein-Friesian herd of State and national note.

WORLD WAR'S GREAT ARMIES

Seventy-five million men were mobilized throughout the world during the late war, according to official statistics published in Berlin. Thirty million were under arms at the close of hostilities.

Germany's total mobilization is given as 13,250,000 of which 8,000,000 still were engaged at the end of the fighting. At the height of its expansion, at the beginning of the western offensive, March 31, 1918, these figures state, the German army totaled 3,500,000 enlisted personnel, and 140,000 officers on the western front, besides 160,000 enlisted men and 3,000 officers in recruit reports.

These fighters were distributed among 190 infantry divisions and two defensive cavalry divisions. They were equipped with 32,218 light and 27,143 heavy machine guns, 3,845 minethrowers, 5,652 field rifles, 3158 light howitzers, 3083 guns for heavy firing at high elevations, 1747 guns for heavy fire at low elevations and 1137 aerial guns

Horses to the number of 764,563 were "mustered" into the military service of the Fatherland.

County Balances

County Treasurer W. S. Burris reported to the Levy Court Tuesday county bank balances as follows: Credit of New Castle County, $171,128.25; miscellaneous road account, $304.23; Mill Creek, $5,242.77; Christiana, $21,113.33; White Clay Creek, $3,324.98; Pencader, $493.11; New Castle, $113.05; Red Lion, $274.43; St. Georges, $7,848.38; Appoquinimink, $2,979.45; Blackbird, $2,522.29; Brandywine, $8,146.05.

HIGH SCHOOL PLAY

The Senior Class of the Middletown High School is to produce the first play of the school year on Friday, October 27, 8 o'clock, P. M., at the Century Club Auditorium. This play is a lively comedy of three acts, called "Brown Makes Things Hum." He surely does and the result is the jolliest sort of a comedy, clean and sparkling with humor all the way through.

A staid professor of anatomy is lured to a prize fight; the police make a raid. The professor barely escapes; reaches his home, followed by Brown, a traveling salesman of Hymn Books and Playing Cards, who is also trying to evade the police who are hot on the trail of the Professor and Brown. Brown secures a disguise and complications follow. An escaped lunatic appears adding to the humor and pathos of the situation.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

Ebenezer Goodley, Harman Reynolds, Jr.; Mrs. Goodley, Harriett Black; Marjorie and Minerva, Ebenezer's daughters, Edna Reynolds and Deweese Ginn; Richard Heatherly, (engaged to Marjorie), Edward Hart; Hellma, the Swedish Maid, Margie Records; Cissy, Ebenezer's Ward, Caroline Fouracre; Alvina Starlight, Mrs. Goodley's sister, Minerva Josephs; Brown, the Hymn Book man, Burton Williams; Thomas Holder, Policeman, George Stant; Antoney Goodley, D. D., Bishop of Balarat, Walter Beasten; William Bigbee, Inmate of Sanitorium, Albert Daniels; Henry Fuller, Superintendent of Sanitorium, Gordon Armstrong.

The members of the play are working industrially on the play under the direction of Miss Rankeillor and it promises to be one well worth spending an evening to see. Come, see, enjoy and have no regrets. Admission, 20 and 35 cents. Proceeds for the benefit of Health Work and Senior Class.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Jane Armstrong

After a short illness Mrs. Jane Armstrong, widow of the late John G. Armstrong, died at her home on Main street in Odessa, Tuesday evening, age 69 years. Deceased leaves to mourn her death one daughter Mrs. Leland Brown who resided with her mother, and a large number of friends. Mrs. Armstrong was born on the old Burges farm, near Odessa, and spent her entire life in that section and was united in marriage to Mr. Armstrong in 1899.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at her late home, 1.30 o'clock, and interment made in Drawyers cemetery.

Harry W. Richards

After an illness of many months Harry W. Richards died at his home in Stanton, Monday morning, Oct. 16th, age 52 years. Deceased had been a patient at John Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md., for several weeks where he was operated on for stomach trouble but gradually grew worse until death relieved him of his suffering. He was the oldest son of William A Richards and spent his boyhood days in Middletown. He leaves a widow, an aged father and three brothers to mourn his death.

The remains were brought to Middletown Thursday morning, and interment made in Forest cemetery.

Large Yield of "Sweets"

The sweet potato yield in lower Delaware this year will exceed a million baskets, according to a seaford broker who is one of the largest buyers of "sweets" on the peninsula. The acreage is one of the largest in the history of that section of the Peninsula, and the yield is the most prolific It is estimated that in the Seaford farming section alone the yield will be upwards of 125,000 baskets. The price being offered for the crop now is very low, and rather than sacrifice their "sweets" at the prevailing prices, the growers are housing them, with the hopes of better prices in the winter. Farmers who contracted with brokers to grow "sweets" at 65 cents per basket are now delivering them, and the brokers are storing them also, in the hopes of a better market with the arrival of cold weather. The prevailing price for prime sweet potatoes is around 45 cents per five-eight basket.

Need Not Tell Their Age

"It has come to my attention that some registration officers have insisted on knowing the ages of women who apply for registration, said Lambert J. Foulk, clerk of the Department of Elections, Wilmington.

"No woman needs to give her age for this purpose. All the law requires is that she shall be 21 years of age or over by the day of election, and this is all she needs to answer any registration officer asking her age."

The next and last registration day is today, (Saturday) October 21.

High in Infant Mortality

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 10.—The Department of Commerce will soon issue a bulletin, based on 1921 figures compiled by the Bureau of the Census, showing for each state and each city in the birth registration area the number of births and the infant mortality rate, together with figures for 1920 for comparison. These 1921 figures for a population of 70,425,705 show 1,714,261 births, 825,511 deaths at all ages, and 129,588 deaths under 1 year of age, which give a birth rate of 24.3 per 1,000 population, a record low death rate of 11.7 per 1,000 population, and a record low infant mortality rate of 76. In 1920 the rates for the birth registration area were: Birth rate, 23.7 per 1,000 population; death rate, 13.1 per 1,000 population, and infant mortality rate, 86.

For the states the lowest 1921 infant mortality rate (51) appears for Oregon, and the highest (68) for Delaware; for cities of 100,000 population or more the lowest infant mortality rate (50) appears for Portland, Oregon, and the highest (114) for Fall River, Mass. Wilmington shows 93 per 1,000 with a birth rate of 235.

A Slight Fire

A slight fire occurred in one of the dressing rooms of the new "Everett" Theatre, Wednesday evening, but was quickly extinguished before any damage was done. An old pair of overalls worn by one of the workmen became ignited and were burning rapidly when a small boy passed by one of the windows in the rear of the building and discovered the blaze, which was quickly subdued.

WANT TO ABOLISH COMMISSIONS

A movement to abolish various State commissions and substitute a Department of Public Health and Welfare was inaugurated at a meeting held last week at the office of J. Hall Anderson, secretary of the State Board of Charities, in Dover The following commissions were represented: Child Welfare, Mothers' Pension, S. P. C. C., Children's Bureau, Delaware Children's Home and Juvenile Court Association. After the project had been considered at length the following motion was adopted:

"That this meeting recommend to the Governor, the abolishing of the Child Welfare Commission, the Mothers' Pension Commission, the State Board of Health, the Tuberculosis Commission, the commission controlling the Ferris Industrial School, Industrial schools for both the white and colored girls, Delaware State Hospital at Farnhurst and the Delaware Colony at Stockley, and creating in lieu thereof a new State department to be known as the Department of Public Health and Welfare and to be managed by a board of commissioners to be appointed either by the Governor or created by act of Legislature, with full power to employ all necessary trained and other assistants to carry out the work now done by all the said institutions and commissions."

As some of the organizations mentioned in the above motion were not represented at the meeting it was decided to hold a further conference in the near future and ask representatives from the following State Institutions to be present: State Board of Health, Tuberculosis Commission, Trustees of the State Hospital at Farnhurst, feeble-minded institution at Stockley, Ferris Industrial School, Industrial School for White Girls, Industrial School for Colored Girls. Those present at the meeting were: Mrs. Charles Warner, Dr. W. J. French, Miss Cora Tschudy, Mrs. Ira Layfield Long, Miss Frances Griggs, Miss Marie T. Lockwood, Mrs Florence Bayard Hilles, James H. Hughes, Rev. W. K. Lord, Miss Merle McMahon, J. Paul Green, Mrs. Ella C. Emery, Mrs. Frank M. Jones and James Hall Anderson.

TO THE WOMEN OF DELAWARE

Since the opportunity has been granted by the Federal Government for the women of this Nation to share in the duties of citizenship, it is vitally important for us to manifest our voting privileges and as patriotic women perform this sacred service at the next election on Nov. 7th.

True patriotism is serving our Country at all times, not only when the horrors of war are destroying our homes and devastating the Land, but every day when we have the chance to help build up our Commonwealth in the protection of our children, our homes and our Nation.

On Saturday, Oct. 21 will be the last opportunity for registration, which will qualify us to exercise our right of franchise. Let us not miss this chance for us to contribute our part more efficiently in helping to choose the men who will become the law-makers for our State and Nation. We want to vote for men of ability, honor, public spirit, liberal in mind to the great human and educational issue and needs of the day. For men who will stand for the Enforcements of the Law and will support the vital questions which the platforms of the parties have adopted.

Let us as home-makers realize that these laws affect the home and community and fail not to meet this supreme call to duty. Let us not forget that we stand for Peace, for Childhood, for Law and Order, for Construction and not Destruction.

If you are not already registered, notice the date, Saturday, Oct. 21, and thus perform a righteous service.

MRS. A. J. WARNER
Pres. Dela. League of Women Voters.

Crippled Boy Run Down

Magistrate Benjamin Vinton Monday afternoon arrested and fined Morris Berg, a cattle dealer of Middletown, $50 and costs, for alleged reckless driving and held him in $1,000 bail to await the results of injuries sustained by George D. Gam, a boy, who has been a cripple for years.

It was testified at the hearing that Berg allowed a negro to operate the truck, who drove the car at a high rate of speed. As he attempted to turn the corner in front of the Delaware Trust building the machine ran upon the sidewalk striking young Gam, demolishing sis wheel chair and throwing the boy several feet, seriously injuring him.

Dr. Joseph Carrow, of Odessa, was called, and after examining George found his crippled legs and feet badly injured. The lad was taken to the Delaware Hospital Tuesday morning for X-ray examination. It is thought he was not internally injured. The boy, who was driving the truck, was unable to be found after the accident.

Berg is said to have taken an appeal from the decision of Magistrate Vinton and gave bail for upper court.

Will Can Peas

You are invited to attend a meeting of those interested in growing peas for the Canning Factory for the Spring of 1923 to be held at the Century Club, Middletown, Saturday morning, Oct. 28, at 10 o'clock. You are invited not only to attend, but to ask questions of men who have successfully grown peas for canning factories. If you know of others interested, please extend this invitation to them.

Very truly yours,
G. HAROLD BAKER.

Hallowe'en Celebration

Henry H. Mitchell, chairman of the prize committee of the Hallowe'en celebration to be held in Elkton, Md., on October 31 has met with wonderful success in the way of obtaining prizes from the business firms of Wilmington and Elkton. Over $500 worth of prizes will be offered and the affair promises to be the best ever held in the town.

Claims Kent Tomato Record

The record for the largest yield of tomatoes this season in Kent county, Md., is claimed by Ernest Briscoe, tenant on the Kelly farm, near Betterton. He picked 100 tons from eight acres or 6,000 baskets for which he got $1,200 an average of $150 per acre, an exceedingly profitable crop compared with wheat or corn.

THE RED CROSS DRIVE

Delaware Chapter Well Organized For The Campaign

MISS M. EARP IS CHAIRMAN

Not since the war has the Delaware Chapter of the American Red Cross been so well organized for the annual membership campaign as this Fall. Through the efforts of Miss Marjorie Earp, chairmen have been obtained in 36 cities and towns throughout each county in the State, and, with the receipt of supplies, which will be sent from headquarters, 911 Delaware Avenue, Wilmington, after October 15, each chairman will be ready for the drive for members.

In Wilmington, ward and district chairmen, under the direction of Mrs. Henry P. Scott, are lining up their workers, and will concentrate their efforts on Red Cross Sunday, November 12. The plan is to wage the Wilmington campaign on one day, but in the country districts, because of the long distances to be traveled, the campaign, which begins on November 11, will be continued, although some of the chairmen throughout the State are striving to so organize their communities that, if they do not complete their canvass on Red Cross Sunday, it will not require many more days to complete it. Outside of Wilmington the State has been organized with district chairmen, who will report direct to Henry M. Canby, Wilmington.

The chairmen that have been selected so far are: Bellefonte, Mrs. Jennie Eaton; Bethel, Mrs. Laura M. Hopkins; Blackbird, Mrs. J. S. Buckson; Bridgeville, Mrs. L. M. Cahall; Camden-Wyoming, Mrs. R. J. Linsdale; Cheswold, Mrs. B. H. Emory; Dagsboro, Mrs. Virginia Lingo; Delaware City, Miss Florence Davidson; Delmar, Mrs. E. T. Sirman; Dover, Mr. C. B. Hope; Felton, Mrs. George C. Hering; Frankford, Mrs. Henry T. Tunnell; Frederica, Mrs. T. B. Cahall; Greenville, Mrs. Henry B. Thompson; Greenwood, Mrs. Nora L. Radcliffe; Harrington, Mrs. John Sheldrake; Kenton, Mrs. Kate C. Johns; Laurel, Mrs. E. N. Smith; Leipsic, Miss Clara Moore; Lewes, Mrs. J. William Hocker; Middletown, Miss Blanche Lockwood; Milford, Mrs. George W. Marshall; Millsboro, Rev. L. W. Wells; Milville, Mrs. Esther Townsend; Milton, Mrs. Roy Lynch; New Castle, Mrs. Edward H. Naylor; Ocean View, Mrs. J. M. Evans; Odessa, Mrs. Clarence E. Pool; Port Penn, Mrs. James A. Kempel; Rehoboth, Miss Anna Hazzard; Seaford, Mr. E. J. Winder; Selbyville, Mrs. W. B. Derrickson; Smyrna, Miss Olive Shallcross; St. Georges, Mrs. James H. S. Gam; Townsend, Miss Edith Maloney; Viola, Mrs. Ella Davidson. Other chairmen will be named before the Roll Call begins.

Miss Ellen Samworth, who has accepted the chairmanship of the Junior Red Cross, is planning an energetic drive to enroll the school children of the State, and hopes to add to the already large number of children who are proud to be affiliated with Red Cross work.

HIGHWAY REPAIRS

Instructions were given to County Engineer Grubb by the Levy Court in Wilmington last week to have the road between the Delaware City cemetery and the colored cemetery repaired. Work on the repairs will be started at once. In order that a better road can be made to connect the Red Lion and St. Georges roads, it is planned to have a strip of land on the Way Property condemned, which will provide a better road leading to the two cemeteries.

Counties must bear one half of the engineering costs and condemnation proceedings on all road work undertaken by the State is stated in an opinion just received from the attorney of the State Highway Department.

It was reported by County Engineer Grubb that from present indications the bridge being constructed at Lumbrook, near Newark, cannot be opened before the end of the month. The County will complete the approaches just as soon as the bridge is completed, thereby opening the new road between Newark and Wilmington for its entire length.

Permission to erect electric light poles on the Gap Road, near Newport, was granted to the Wilmington and Philadelphia Traction Company.

The contract for laying a concrete sidewalk on the Marshallton bridge was awarded to John Fanning, of Marshallton, at a cost of $1,725.

Teachers' Association to Meet

The Delaware State Teachers' Association will hold its fourth annual meeting at Dover, November 9th and 10th. Education leaders of national reputation have been secured to address the general sessions and to meet with the teachers in their round-table discussions of their problems.

The speakers secured and the topics of their main addresses are as follows:

Miss Florence M. Hale, Agent for Rural Education Maine "Why Teach School Today?"

Dr. Edward F. Buehner, Director of School of Education, Hopkins University, "The Question of Cost in Education."

Dr. Wallace W. Atwood, President Clark University, "The New Meaning of Geography in American Education."

Dr. Charles A. Wagner, Supt. of Schools, Chester, Pa., "Children's Capabilities and the School Progam."

The Teachers of the Middletown Zone met in the Middletown School, Monday night, Oct. 16, at 7.00 o'clock, at which time plans for the State meeting were taken up with special reference to school exhibits.

Large Barn Burned

Chesapeake City, Md., firemen responded late Friday night to a fire on the farm of Charles Whitlock, at Town Point, Md., which destroyed a large barn, outbuildings and this season's crops. They managed to save the dwelling. The cause of the fire was not determined. The loss is estimated at $4500, partly covered by insurance.

The Romilly Roadhouse

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

A high-powered but dusty automobile slowed down on the main street of the little village of Brompton. The owner and driver elaborately removed his goggles and halted the only citizen who happened to be in sight, Bob Thorold.

"Say, young feller," called he, "what sort of a place is it out there on the turnpike? Can you get a decent meal, hey?"

"On the turnpike?" queried Bob Thorold. "To tell you the truth, I didn't know there was a decent place to eat anywhere around here. Motorists usually go on to Burton."

The driver-owner consulted the guide book that had been thrust at him by one of the occupants of the tonneau. "White house at first turn to right on Romilly turnpike after leaving Brompton," he read slowly.

"Why, that would be the Romilly house. Are you sure that is what the book says?"

"Those are the words."

"That's surprising," murmured Thorold. "It can't be right——"

"Drive on," came a voice from the tonneau. "I guess the young feller hasn't woke up yet. Look the place over and if it looks O. K. we'll try." And the man at the wheel obeyed, leaving Bob Thorold still murmuring that something must be wrong somewhere.

Bob Thorold, who kept up his ancestral home in Brompton and spent his vacations there, walked on and presently encountered Mr. Jenkins, postmaster of Brompton.

"Funny thing," said Bob; "I met some people who spoke about having meals at a white house at the first turn to the right on Romilly turnpike after leaving Brompton. That's the Romillys, isn't it?"

"Cartain sure," quoth the postmaster. "Cartain sure. You've heard how 'tis, han't you?"

"They haven't sold the place, have they?" inquired Bob. "I thought Miss Susan had vowed never to leave the old place; she isn't dead, is she?"

"Dead, nothing. The how and the wherefore is, so folks say, that they've lost their money—every durned cent of it, and Miss Jane had to open up the place as a kind of roadhouse for motorists. Ought to make a good thing out of it, seems to me, being as there's no other sich place hereabouts and the autos are as thick as spatter along the turnpike. It's kinder too bad, though, losing all their pile. I expect it was fool investment. I'll tell you, Mr. Robert Thorold, what them ladies need and needed a long time ago was a good business man in the family, eh?"

Bob Thorold was annoyed at the postmaster's rather facetious left-handed allusion to the affair, now ten years past, between Jane Romilly and himself, but greater than his annoyance at this was his concern over the loss of the Romilly fortune that had made it necessary for Jane Romilly, proud daughter of the always proud Romillys, to turn her house into a roadhouse and to spend her strength supervising meals for motorists—rude, uncouth, parvenues, thought Bob Thorold, like the one he had just encountered.

Bob Thorold spent the afternoon in a long, slow ramble through the woods around Brompton. He was not much given to solitary ramblings and when he did indulge in one it was when he had much thinking to do. Toward the close of the afternoon he turned his steps toward the Romilly turnpike, down the first turn to the right and up the pathway that led to the imposing white house built by the Romillys four generations ago. The door stood open and the screen was unlocked. Within he could see that small tables had been arranged in the front and back drawing rooms—ten or fifteen in all. Of these five were occupied—five cars were parked in the spacious driveway that circled around the house.

Bob entered and took his seat at a small table. Presently a white clad waitress approached him with a list of dishes offered for that day's dinner. Bob took it with a queer thrill—it was unmistakably written by Jane Romilly. The solitary meal followed, but Jane Romilly did not appear. After it was over Bob offered his card to the maid, and asked her to take it to Miss Romilly. He wished to see her.

The answer was that Miss Romilly would see him in the old dining room across the hall. She never appeared before the regular diners, said the maid, and her aunt remained in her room. This, thought Bob, was quite in keeping with the proud spirit of the Romillys even in the hour of their misfortune.

Jane was alone in the old dining room, and she rose from her desk at one side of the room and came swiftly to him with outstretched hand.

"How amazingly well you are looking," Bob could not refrain from saying.

"Yes," laughed Jane. "The work seems to agree with me, doesn't it?"

"But why didn't you tell me? I might have helped you. You know I once got you to promise that if you ever needed help you'd forget old prejudices and send for me."

"Oh, but it was too late by the time I found out," said Jane quite cheerfully. "The harm was done and the only thing I could do was to face the music. Besides, it's been a wonderful experience. Aunt is very feeble, now. She keeps to her room with her attendant and really doesn't know. And the work and the people keep me from loneliness. I really don't know how it will all end—"

Bob Thorold shuddered. It was outrageous to think of Jane Romilly spending the years of her life feeding hungry motorists.

He sat beside her in the dusk and while she talked cheerfully of the weather and garden crops, Bob sat with his head bowed.

"Don't talk about such things," he burst out. "Jane, Jane—if this had only come sooner. I was in love with you—I always have been, but I never dared to ask you, because—well, because I did not think that a poor boy like me had any right to ask Jane Romilly to marry him. I was afraid of your money and your pride. I know you are still proud—"

"No, Bob, I confess the Romilly pride is slipping away. I've learned a lot in ten years, and this little business venture, which really has been absurdly profitable, has taught me that people are pretty much the same wherever you find them. No, Bob, the Romilly fortune has remained and I'm adding to it, but the old Romilly pride has spent itself—"

"Then you didn't lose your money?" gasped Bob Thorold. "But why did you start all this?"

"Why, that's the joke. People don't think I lost my money, do they? Well, that makes it all the more interesting. No, some one of the editors of the Guide Book just made a funny mistake. Probably thought our house looked like a roadhouse and assumed it was. And it does rather. So the people began to come, and they were hungry and it was such fun feeding them and so hard to explain the mistake every time, that I just started in. I wanted to see if I had any of the Romilly bump for business. Imagine those inquisitive old Brompton natives just making it up out of whole cloth that I'd lost my money—"

"I never would have come to see you if I had not believed them," said Bob. "For my own part I'm sorry that they were wrong."

Jane Romilly leaned forward and placed a fair, capable hand over one of Bob's resting on the arm of his chair.

"Perhaps I could manage to lose it—if—"

"You really will marry me—then?" stammered Bob.

And Jane said that she really would.

Rongbuk Monastery in Tibet.

The Rongbuk monastery is one of the holiest in all Tibet, the lama himself being an incarnation of the god Chenraylay. This god, although important, holds a minor place in the divine hierarchy. He has the extraordinary capacity of being able continually to change his face.

This wonderfully situated monastery lies at the head of the Rongbuk valley, in full view of Everest, and is probably the highest in Tibet. It is visited annually by large numbers of Buddhist devotees. No animals are allowed to be killed in the valley, and all sheep that are required for the consumption of the expeditions have to be killed as far down as the village of Chobu, which must be at least 15 miles from the base camp.

Marvelous Cure.

"That reminds me," said the jovial member of the party, "of the remarkable cure of a dumb man through a cycle accident."

"Through a cycle accident!" exclaimed several in one breatth. "Impossible! How do you make that out?"

"Why," he replied, "as he was going along his machine ran away with him down a hill, at the bottom of which it ran against the side wall and was smashed to pieces. The dumb one was hurt rather badly and had received a good shaking, but he got up from the ground and picked up a tire — and spoke!"

Trying It on the Dog.

Thurston—Old Titus Wadde is mighty stingy with his private stock. Did he ever give you a drink?

Wetmore—Yes; once. He gave me a shot of a new lot he'd bought and then waited results before he drank.

USE RICH FABRICS IN WRAPS; MILLINERY FOR LITTLE FOLKS

"SING a song of sixpence," and it will have no word in it about dressy fall coats. Their theme is all of rich things, of luxurious fabrics, superb embroideries and soft furs, but it may be said to their credit that they look even more expensive than they really are. Wraps are handsome and sumptuous, they have never been more becoming, and even those that dispense with embroidery are luxurious and rich looking.

There are many fall wraps that are innocent of embroideries, but furs are everywhere present. They are so universally used that to say "coat" is to mean at least a fur collar. Often there are cuffs to match, and sometimes trimming as well. Furs are so in keeping with the soft-faced, lustrous, pile fabrics used for wraps, the temptation to add them is irrisistible. In the two handsome coats pictured the designers have shown how well suited to one another duvetine, fur and embroidery are. They have selected a warm, deep pile fabric and adorned it generously with things that measure up to its luxurious qualities.

Two Handsome Fall Coats

In dressy wraps designers seem to show preference for bloused models. Two impressive examples are pictured, both of them bloused, both embroidered and both elegantly equipped with fur in collar and cuffs.

In the coat at the left, embroidery is massed on the upper portion where sleeves and body, cut in one, make a cape-like expanse of the fabric as a background. The collar and cuffs are of dark marten fur. In the other coat the embroidery appears in panels on the sleeves and on the sides of the skirt portion. Fox fur provides the shawl collar, the deep cuffs and bands at the bottom of the side panels.

Linings in these handsome wraps are often in plain heavy crepe de chine and sometimes two or three colors are combined in them—a light color at the top half and dark at the bottom half of the garment, or three colors are used in wide bands joined by narrow, fancy silk braids.

Among the more expensive wraps, including coats and capes of fur, plain linings of heavy crepe de chine are richly decorated with embroidery of flowers or conventional designs. These are in brilliant colors and so arranged that they form deep borders about the hem line. Other forms of decoration are used in which plaited or fluted ribbons play a conspicuous part in large medallions placed on the lining near the front of the garment and not far above the hem line—nothing is too rich for this season's wraps.

After the children's school hats have been bought, their dress-up needs in millinery are usually held in abeyance for a while. The important matter of selecting hats for grownups comes first and is engrossing; besides, many discriminating women buy only plain fine hats (of felt, velours or beaver with simple ribbon trimming) for their young daughters. They do not experiment with other styles and wait until the staple lines they choose from are all on display.

If the choice is left to the children themselves they are apt to like hats that are more like those their elders wear. Designers are very clever in mimicking some of the grownup shapes and developing them in a way that is delightfully childish. They have taken the off-the-face hat, for instance, and interpreted the idea in successful models for little girls, and four of them are shown in the group pictured here. These pretty hats have the usual charm of miniatures; small ladies adore them and their elders can't help admiring them.

Off-the-Face Hats Popular

Duvetine and other suede-finished cloths, silk and velvet, furnish the materials that designers work with, and ribbon remains their main dependence as a trimming, although they introduce cunning yarn flowers and amusingly simple embroidery, with telling effect. In the group pictured a soft hat at the top, with flexible crown, is made of corded silk, the cording appearing in both crown and brim. A saucy rosette of narrow ribbon is posed on the upturned brim at the front. At the left another soft hat of duvetine, has its crown ornamented with braid and a ribbon collar ending in loops and ends, all hanging off the brim at the right side. Velvet makes the smart, childish hat with puffed crown, at the right of the group. It has a rolled-up brim that invites needlework decoration. A flower motif is sketched on it with chain stitch of silk floss. It has a ribbon sash about the crown with falling ends at the back. Velvet is a favorite combination. The dresses are so made that they appear to be almost of one solid color viewed from one point and of another when viewed from another point. For instance, in the combination of blue and gray the back of the dress is almost all blue and the front all gray.

Blue and Black.

Royal blue is used effectively on black velvet. One draped frock is lined with chiffon of that color which is revealed most charmingly by the one-sided drapery. A cabochon of sapphires holds the drapery in place.

Costume Jewelry.

The brown tones have been featured in costume jewelry and wonderfully pretty effects are being produced, especially in necklaces. But while brown is modish, many good dressers prefer gray.

A black dress of gaufre satin was worn with a wrappy jacket of bright red cape, the sleeves and bottom of the jacket banded with black taffeta embroidered in red and gold.

GAY IN TRIMMING

New Autumn Models Are Literally Embroidery Covered

Many of the Latest Afternoon Dresses Made of Crepe Romaine, Which Resembles Georgette.

Fashion still pivots on trimmings, asserts a fashion authority in the New York Tribune. Apparently dressmakers do not think that their clients are ready to accept a new silhouette, consequently they make little effort to create one. Women have been so definite as to what they would and would not accept in the matter of silhouette that designers still depend upon trimmings to give variety to their models.

Discriminating women seemingly have not had enough of embroidery. Some of the new autumn models in silk are literally embroidery covered, the pattern being so exquisitely executed that it seems a part of the fabric.

Many of the newest afternoon dresses for autumn are made of crepe romaine of that new quality which resembles crepe georgette, but which has considerable more body and is more durable. A charming model developed in gray crepe romaine, is trimmed with hand-plaited bands of faille ribbon set into open interstices, which are embroidered all around. Broad panels of tiny hand-run tucks in both the back and front give further ornamentation and weight to the dress.

Two colors of georgette crepe are charmingly combined in some of the new autumn dresses, the two tones being brought together by means of very elaborate embroidery. Navy and Pendants Are Worn on Cords.

Pendants on thin black silk cords are made of coral, of jet and of other stones.

A WARM WRAP FOR MOTORING

For motoring and under all conditions when durability is required, nothing takes the place of the raccoon fur coat.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

For the semi-dress occasion the black charmeuse gown trimmed in velvet or brocaded ribbon is usurping the place of the beaded gown. A long-lined black charmeuse has wide bands of electric blue velvet ribbon extending from the dropped shoulder to below the elbow where the charmeuse begins again. White beads in tiny design almost entirely cover the velvet. No other trimming is used.

Many of the velvet hats have reversible crowns with velvet on one side and embroidered effects of metallic cloth on the other. This treatment provided a hat for dressy wear as well as for street wear.

Crepe weaves continue to reign for afternoon wear in preference to the shiny surfaced fabrics.

The little draped turbans of silver or gold cloth which are so popular in Paris at present are being pressed into prominence by many of the American shops. They are designed for evening wear and are suitable for any color combination with which they are worn.

APRONS FOR LITTLE GIRLS

Cretonne and Percale Excellent Material for Over Garment for Miss of Seven.

The dressiest of aprons for the young miss of about seven years is made of cretonne and percale. It is the sort of garment that can be slipped on over rompers and worn as a regular dress or slipped on over a regular dress when romping is in order. The flaring skirt is cretonne in a gay design of red and green birds, blue and cinnamon posies. The bodice is of cinnamon percale, in solid color. Patch pockets and sash are of the percale also.

A New Style Point.

One of the style points emphasized by models shown by one importer is the dropped shoulder accompanied by a broad, loose, underarm movement. This idea is especially featured in coats and suits, and particularly the jacquette, which is hailed as a mode extraordinaire.

PREFER LONG-HAIRED FURS

Wolf Trimming and Similar Peltry Hold Favor; Beaver and Squirrel Collars Shown.

There is a modified way of handling the voluminous lines of the new season that give grace and real comfort to the wearer of such coats, bought, first of all, from a practical standpoint. One manufacturer has made wearability his first consideration, and in doing so has designed some smart and popular numbers.

A preference is given to wolf trimmings and long-haired furs, although beaver and squirrel collars are, of course, included in the showing. Black ormadale has been used in fashioning one very opulent-looking model that is trimmed with platinum wolf. Wide mandarin sleeves make a nice complement to its full back and tailored braiding defining the sleeve section from the back is a clever means of accenting their fullness.

This model is typical of a group of coats showing varied sleeve treatments and braid uses that are smart. The use of a raccoon collar on a coat of ormadale is one of the particularly novel notes introduced in the fur-trimmed styles. Untrimmed ormadale and bolivia numbers are an interesting part of the showing, and in these models the beauty of the cheap pile fabrics seem most pronounced.

Jenny sleeves and a Jenny neckline are most aptly used on one of these untrimmed coats. Scarf collars edged with silk fringe and a modified leg-of-mutton sleeve are introduced on another coat that shows a circular fullness. Chenille tassels of large dimensions drop from the sleeves and form a rather handsome ornament. Among other features to be noted as particularly smart is the pouched sleeve gathered into a cuff. This hints of a peasant influence and has a decidedly youthful effect.

Tones Border on Flame.

Red tones bordering on flame are favored. With a white gown a red silk Spanish cape and toque is worn.

FANS THAT MATCH THE DRESS

Novelties of Coque in Delightful Colors, Black Net Lace, to Accompany Evening Gowns.

Novelty fans of coque in the most delightful colors are mounted on sticks of carved galalith and tortoise-shell. Those made of black and red coque feathers are particularly effective. However, these might be considered extreme by the woman who wears conservative clothes.

Black net or lace fans to match evening dresses are smart. Among this type now shown are some that might quite well have been chosen by those exacting Spanish beauties who were never without one of these romantic bits of feminism.

A chantilly lace fan, in order to correspond with the dress, may have the design of the lace accentuated either by needlework or by hand painting the design in colors, and metallic effects.

As an accompaniment to the evening dress of plain-colored silk there are fans made of a succession of silk petals, and petals mounted on frames of carved ivory or amber, according to the color of the silk used. These fans may be had in almost every color imaginable. Some have ostrich flues in a contrasting color scattered among the petals. For instance, one made of purple petals has yellow ostrich flues, while another, of pearl gray, has the ostrich in rose color. These are made up in both small and large dimensions, the smaller ones being particularly adaptable to the young girl.

Draperies.

The one-sided drape is the most popular dress feature of the day. While it looks complicated, the draped gown is more successfully undertaken by the home dressmaker than by practically any other type. It is possible to bring out the best in every figure if one is clever at draping.

Wrinkled Silks.

Fabrics woven in deep wrinkles seem very popular now, particularly when the fabric is a gold or silver metal cloth. For coats this material is most effective.

PUZZLED OVER THE RED SUNSETS

Phenomenon Which Occurred in the Autumn of 1883 Has Never Been Satisfactorily Explained.

Red sunsets made the autumn of 1883 memorable. They occurred in every part of the globe, but especially in the Indian ocean and the Southern Pacific ocean. Shortly after sunset a vivid red glow suffused the entire western sky, remaining for upward of an hour, when it would slowly fade away. This strange sight was first noticed in India, where it is said that the sun assumed a greenish tinge on nearing the horizon. In the latitudes of North America these red sunsets were of almost nightly occurrence for several months. In striving to account for these manifestations, a number of solutions were offered, but the theory that met with the greatest acceptance was that the red sunsets were caused by volcanic dust and gaseous matter vomited by Krakotoa, in Sunda straits, between Java and Sumatra islands. Calculations demonstrated the fact that manifestations of the red glow coincided with the course which such vapors would take on being wafted away by the prevailing winds. But this theory found many opponents.

Pug Dog Not Wanted.

A correspondent wonders where all the pug dogs have gone. A few years back they were found in many households, but now not a one is to be seen in a month's journey. Most folk, however, have ceased worrying about where the pug has gone and only hope he will never come back. He was a selfish and conceited pup at best, and the Lord knows he was a homely brute. It did seem mighty ridiculous to waste love on a pug when one could get a St. Bernard for the same money.—Los Angeles Times.

A STRONG LOCAL TICKET

MESSRS. Henry D. Howell, of Middletown, and P. Earl Pleasanton, of near McDonough, two exceptionally able and worthy gentlemen, are on the Republican ticket for the offices of State Representative and Levy Court, respectively.

As a candidate for State Representative our well-known citizen, Henry D. Howell, possesses many qualifications which will make him a very useful member of the Legislature.

He is well educated and widely read, while his knowledge of parliamentary practice will increase his usefulness in that body. Moreover, Mr. Howell is a successful business man, and to his other qualifications adds that of a practical knowledge of business affairs in his county and State.

Mr. P. Earl Pleasanton as a Levy Court candidate, is another illustration of the possession of peculiar fitness for public office. He is an intelligent gentleman as well as a wide-awake, progressive farmer, and his participation in the Farm Bureau work in this county, will prove of especial benefit to the Legislature in its consideration of the important agricultural questions that will come before it.

Both of these gentlemen are of unimpeachable standing as good citizens in their respective communities, and their presence in the next Legislature will prove not only creditable to themselves, but highly profitable to the State.

THE GROSS PUBLIC DEBT

THE Treasury Department announces that the total gross public debt of the United States was reduced $230,348,000 during the month of September, 1922, and it now stands at $22,812,048,000, as of September 30, compared with $23,042,756,000 for August 31. On September 30th of last year the debt stood at $23,924,108,000 compared with $26,596,648,000 on August 31, 1919, when the war debt was at its peak. This indicates a reduction of nearly $4,000,000,000 in the debt since the Pepublican party assumed control of Congress. That is at the rate of about a billion and one-third reduction annually of the gross public debt. If that rate could be maintained it would require something less than 18 years to wipe the slate clean with our own unaided efforts. To liquidate in 18 years a debt piled up by Democratic misrule in two years would be no small achievement.

LOOKING FINE

FIRST estimates of the Republican majority in the next House of Representatives are being revised upward. As the people more fully realize the importance of developing the economic policies of the administration they perceive the necessity of sending men to Congress who are thoroughly in sympathy with what the President is

WORTHY TO BE HONORED

NEW and large honors have come to Delaware through the public-spirited philanthropies of her eminent son, Col. Coleman T. duPont whose noble Boulevard already costing him over $4,000,000.00 promises when completed to confer upon his State the proud distinction of having the finest system of public roads in the United States.

Than this, what appeal, at once more meritorious and powerful, could be made to his fellow citizens to place a man of such large and useful visions in a station where he may upon a yet grander scale employ those constructive talents and generous tastes whose exercise have bestowed upon his own commonwealth so enduring a boon?

Col. duPont with his Big Idea of giving Delaware the inestimable blessing of "good roads," has done a wise and a great deed whose wide usefulness will outlast this and many coming generations, for "good roads" are as essential to the States prosperity as big crops and big prices for its farmers.

A scientifically built road like our Appian Way, the duPont Boulevard, is of the very highest importance to the State.

Rome's public roads were necessary to her greatness, and possibly her fame was as much due to her long roads as to her short swords.

The Transcript, therefore, believes that this princely gift, given with no possible thought of any reward in return, will awaken in the breast of many grateful Delawareans a wish to show some slight expression of their appreciation by the bestowal of the senatorial toga upon Col. Coleman T. duPont, so worthy in every way, in brain as well as in heart to receive that high honor.

REGISTER TO-DAY!

LAST call for the dining car. You must register to-day, or lose your vote! The issues are important, and every single Republican vote may be needed to make our ticket a sure winner.

MEATS of Quality and Purity

SINCE we have been in the Meat Business in Middletown we have always tried to sell you Quality Meats, the kind that we would have our children eat because we buy only the Blue Ribbon products that have been inspected and are pure and wholesome. We don't claim to sell the cheapest, but we do claim to sell the best Meats at reasonable prices.

A few days ago a lady said to us "I have tried them all and have come back HOME because I get the best services from your store; in Quality and Purity it reminds me of home because you keep it so clean".

Stop in and give us your next order or send the children. You can trust us to send just as good cuts by them.

Covers laid for 500 at the Walls Banquet of Fall Suits

You're invited—here's your place card—and if ever a man had a genuine feast in store for him—here it is in the original package.

Yes—we usually stage our Fall opening in October but this season in our campaign to increase our volume 30% we are not waiting—we are wading in now.

New ideas—new patterns—the only thing the same as last season is that the suits still have buttons!

WALK-OVER

Once It Was "Price" Now It's Service

"How much ?" used to be the thing you'd consider first in a pair of shoes·

It's still important, but not the main argument for a shoe.

Good judgement goes beyond the pocketbook.

It considers the fit and the wear, and then the price.

The most valuable thing in a shoe, you cannot see at all.

When you buy a Walk-Over, you're getting a shoe that has stood the test of hard times and good times for 48 years. It is known for its good, faithful service.

TWO TINY WIRES

Each Bell Telephone subscriber is connected to the local central office by wires—two tiny wires.

These wires pass through a maze of cables and coils, through delicate apparatus that must be kept in careful adjustment.

And that isn't the end of it, for there must be apparatus to connect each telephone here with any other Bell Telephone in the nation.

The job of building and maintaining this complicated equipment is done by two-fisted men—men who think in terms of never failing service.

Theirs too is the task of installing new telephones, and of maintaining them.

In addition to their knowledge of telephone construction one outstanding quality characterizes these men—they are imbued with the spirit of courtesy.

When they come into your home or your office you find them anxious to do their work quickly, efficiently and neatly.

They want you to feel that should they return at some future day you will welcome them.

For they know, as do all Bell people, that courtesy pays.

To Gain a Good Reputation

The way to gain a good reputation is to endeavor to be what you appear." That is precisely the manner in which Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has gained its reputation as a cure for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Every bottle that has ever been put out by the manufacturers has been fully up to the high standard of excellence claimed for it. People have found that it can be depended upon for the relief and cure of these ailments and that it is pleasant and safe to take.

100 lbs. of Purina Cow Chow contains 24 lbs. of protein, 85% of which is digestible and convertible into blood, tissue and milk. It is pure feed that perfectly

Balances home-grown roughage and silage.

It save you the trouble of mixing and balancing your own ration. It is more uniform than any home-mixed feed because the ingredients are laboratory tested to a fixed standard of quality, and measured and mixed by machinery. The high percentage of protein insures maximum milk flow. It will make the average cow on the average ration produce

3 lbs. more milk per day, at an additional feed cost of about 3c

Give Cow Chow a trial. Sold only in checkerboard bags. Let us put your herd on a test.

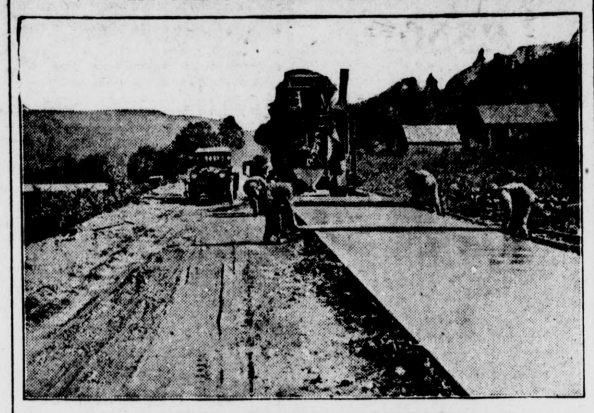
SOUND DEATH KNELL OF DETOUR IN NEW PROCESS OF BUILDING



Laying Pavement Over Half of Roadbed at One Time, Leaving Other Half Open to Traffic.

Elimination of the "detour bogey," the bane of every touring motorist's life, is seen as the successful outcome of recent experiments in what may be termed "split crown" construction of concrete roads.

The new method lies simply in laying paving over but half of the roadbed at one time, keeping the remaining half open to traffic as the work progresses. This method has been found particularly effective in rough and hilly country where detours are practically impossible, but urgent appeals from automobile owners who have experienced the torture of detouring by night, may bring it into general use.

Co-operation Essential.

Careful co-operation between the motoring public and the contractor is, however, essential. By stationing responsible guards at each end of the open strip, traffic may be sent over the route, first in one direction and then in the other, without danger.

Great care must be exercised by the contractor in order to avoid settlement of dust particles on the freshly-laid paving. In order to insure the proper curing of the concrete it is necessary that he keeps the unimproved side of the road well sprinkled at all times. Failure to do this would affect the concrete to an extent that might cause "scaling" in later years.

Following the completion of the first section of paving, it must be permitted to harden under expert "curing" supervision for at least 30 days. At the end of this period it may then be opened to traffic while work is begun upon the second strip.

Two Principal Virtues.

Although a slight increase in original cost may be charged against this method, it has two principal virtues which commend it to the taxpayer and the motorist alike. Doing away as it does with the detour, it cuts cost of motor operation more than half aside from the big item of decreased danger and loss of time and patience. Secondly, it eliminates the cross-wise cracks which appear in some hard-surface roads through letting down of the grading after the paving is completed. The joint where the two sides come together leaves an almost imperceptible line in the exact center of the roadway. This is known as a construction joint and allows just sufficient "play" to obviate the chance that imperfect grading or poor designing on the part of the contractor might result in unsightly cracks.

The accompanying illustration shows this system in use in Litchfield county, Connecticut, in foothills of the Berkshires, where it is reported to be "holding up" under the most severe traffic conditions.

QUALITY OF OIL IS IMPORTANT

Poor Lubrication Generally the Cause of Excessive Piston Friction.

REDUCES POWER OF ENGINE

Unbroken Oil Film Should Always Be Maintained Between Pistons and Cylinder Walls — "Thinning" Detrimental to Vital Parts.

It is not generally realized how much the useful power of an engine is reduced by the friction of its pistons upon their cylinder walls. Normal piston friction is altogether the greatest mechanical loss in the engine, if not in the whole car and, if it becomes abnormal in amount, car performance suffers in a marked degree. The fuel may do its full work upon the pistons, but if this force is too largely wasted in overcoming their friction, the power left over for moving the car is seriously reduced.

In the case of cars, in the engines of which new tightly-fitted pistons and rings have just been installed, useful power is sometimes so diminished by undue piston friction that even slight grades cannot be negotiated on "high" until these parts become smoothed and "worn in" by their prolonged mutual rubbing action. Such a condition is occasional only, but piston friction may, at any time, become excessive and engine performance unsatisfactory, through poor lubrication and it is, in this connection, that the quality of oil used is of great importance, for it is a fact that, without causing acute damage to the parts, excessive friction may exist during much of the time that an engine is in operation, to the detriment of its performance and with extensive resulting wear.

To secure perfect piston lubrication and thus to minimize friction, it is essential that there should always be an unbroken oil film maintained between pistons and cylinder walls and, to insure this, the oil must not become so thin as to be squeezed out from between their opposing surfaces. Detrimental thinning of the oil may result from its quality or its grade being such that it loses its "body" or thickness at the higher engine temperatures, or it may be due to unburned fuel passing the pistons, dissolving the lubricant upon them and entering the crank-case below.

The precautions necessary to be taken are to use only oil of such heat-resisting quality and such initial viscosity as shall not become watery at the highest allowable engine temperature and, furthermore, to renew the oil supply before it becomes objectionably thinned by the addition of unburned gasoline components.

Lost Motion in Steering Wheel.

Never permit too much lost motion in the steering wheel. All parts of the steering apparatus from the wheels back should be kept tight and properly adjusted; assuring easier control and greater assurance of safety.

Needs Attention.

It is a good plan to draw up the studs of nuts holding down the cylinders of the motor from time to time, and also to adjust similarly those which hold the engine to the frame.

You Auto Know

That one of the principal reasons that tires wear out before their guarantee has expired is carelessness in driving along poorly paved streets or rough roads. The "shell holes" which appear in macadam or asphalt streets especially in the spring, after the ice has loosened a portion of the hard surface, are particularly hard on tires, for the sharp edges may gash the fabric and the jar incident to the sudden rise and fall may give rise to bruises and blisters which injure the inner casing.

The habit of driving in ruts or along car-tracks, is also very hard on tires, for the projecting sides rub against the side of the tire above the tread and soon wear this away, making it easy for water to enter and rot the fabric. In addition, turning corners at a high rate of speed or skidding of any kind—whether on a wet street, or in starting or stopping too suddenly—also grinds the tires and causes needless wear. Habits of this kind leave their marks plainly upon the tires and prevent the driver from securing the refund to which he is entitled if the guaranteed mileage is not forthcoming.

AUTOMOBILE GOSSIP

Wet rubber cuts more easily than the same substance dry.

* * *

New cars should be driven rather slowly for the first 1,000 miles. Never more than 30 miles per hour.

* * *

Two spare tires are usually carried in the car, but occasionally there are three or more punctures on one trip.

* * *

There is frequently danger of short circuits in the battery because of the fact that one of the terminals is located near the metal handle used for lifting the battery.

* * *

An indelible pencil is best for marking the spot where a leak is found in a tube. The indelible mark will remain, as the wet rubber helps dissolve the lead of the pencil.

* * *

Be sure to have the valve stem and stay bolts tight on the tire when attached to the rim of the wheel. It will keep water and dirt from getting into the casing on wet or dirty roads.

* * *

A monthly inspection should be made of the brake rods and connecting parts. Clean off all the accumulated dirt and rust, so that they will act as freely and efficiently as possible.

* * *

Many accidents have occurred to operators who thoughtlessly step on the accelerator instead of on the brakes.

* * *

In meeting a person, animal or vehicle on a public highway, a driver of a motor vehicle should keep to the right.

* * *

The radiator hose connections in the water system of the motor should be frequently inspected. Oftentimes these hose connections look fair on the outside, but they are bad on the inside.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by parcel post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

A Reminder.

A man was almost frantic with toothache. The only other person in the room was his pompous, pedantic, matter-of-fact aunt.

Presently the man burst out:

"Oh, I wish to goodness people were born without teeth."

His aunt glanced up from her paper. "A moment's consideration, my dear Alfred," she said, "will remind you that that is precisely what does happen."

And she went on reading.

We notice that people trying to get the best of it generally do.

The Same Old Backache!

Does every day bring the same old backache? Do you drag along with your back a dull, unceasing ache? Evening find you "all played out"? Don't be discouraged! Realize it is merely a sign you haven't taken good care of yourself. This has probably strained your kidneys. Take things easier for awhile and help your kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Then the backache, dizziness, headaches, tired feelings and bladder troubles will go. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

A Virginia Case

Mrs. Ella Craft, 122 Roxbury St., Clifton Forge, Va., says: "My back ached and was weak and stiff and I had nervous headaches and dizzy spells. Black spots floated before my eyes constantly and I was annoyed by the irregular action of my kidneys. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and two boxes of this medicine cured me."

DESIGNED FOR HIGH PLACE

Sandy's Prediction for Son's Future, However, Contained One Rather Unfortunate Proviso.

In Scotland there is told a story of one Sandy McIntosh, who started to build a small outhouse of brick. After the usual plan of bricklayers he worked from the inside, and, as he had the material close beside him, the walls were rising fast when noon arrived, and with it his son, John, who brought his father's dinner.

With honest pride in his eye, Sandy looked at John over the wall on which he was engaged, and asked:

"How do ye think I am gettin' on?"

"Fine, father; but how dae ye get oot? You've forgot the door?"

One glance around him showed Sandy that his son was right; but, looking at him kindly, he said:

"Oh, but ye've got a grand heid on ye, John! Ye'll be an architect yet, as sure's yer feyther's a builder!"

TIP OFFERED TO DENTISTS

Writer Thinks Practice Might Mitigate the Horrors of Tooth-Pulling Operations.

A new idea for dentists.

If you've never had a tooth pulled don't read this suggestion, for it's beyond the comprehension of such. Far!

One certain friend of a certain dentist in this city, having read a delicious dissertation on the pulling of teeth via the novocaine method, happened upon the end of the story, in which the dentist said: "That's all. Perhaps you'd better have a little stimulant."

By way of suggestion to the local dentist his friend wrote: "By introducing this innovation there is no doubt but that you can soon take over the entire building for your practice. Of course, the technique of extraction will be lengthened. One pull by the dentist to be followed by one pull by the patient, and then, I suppose, a long pull all together."—Washington Star.

Evidently Christians.

An American family living in China recently hired two servants from Nanking, a missionary center. Accordingly, the new servants were Christians. Another Chinese servant in the family discovered the newcomers' religion and reported the fact to his mistress. Asked how he knew the new boys were Christians, he said: "Oh, they know all about God, Jesus Christ, and Santa Claus."

Movable Mark.

A player and his caddy started off from the first tee. The man's drive had booked badly into the rough. They hunted for the ball for some time and then the man turned to the boy and said: "Caddy, did you mark my ball?" "Yes," he answered, "I marked it." "What by?" asked the man. "By a bird," said the boy, "but it flew away."—Judge.

Musical Note.

A very deaf old woman walking along the street saw an Italian turning a peanut roaster. She stood looking at it awhile, shook her head, and said: "No, I shan't give you any money for such music as that. I can't hear any of the tunes, and besides it smells as if there were something burning inside."—The Congregationalist.

Her Military Aunt.

Mrs. Smallwaist was annoyed. Her maid was always going out.

"Sarah," said Mrs. Smallwaist, "I cannot have you continually going out. Next Sunday you must stay at home."

"Oh, but ma'am, I've promised my aunt to spend the afternoon with her."

It was just then that little Jackie chipped in.

"Do let her go, ma!" he said. "Her aunt has been made a sergeant, and he's got a new coat with stripes on!"
